The above described horse has been examined clinically on the 13th January 2021, at the request of the vendor, Sam Williams, at Little Avondale Stud. This examination included auscultation of the heart, lungs and gastro-intestinal tract. The rectal temperature was taken. A basic examination of the mouth, and of the eyes with a bright light was conducted (no sedation or mydriatics were administered as a part of this). In the case of colts, two testicles were observed to be present unless stated otherwise.

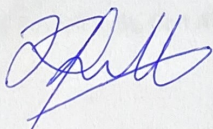

The limbs, conformation, and type were not assessed as a part of this examination and no inference is made in this certificate as to the status of parameters.

The horse appears to be in good general health, and no significant abnormalities were detected at the time of examination.

There is an 8cm diameter, firm, non-painful swelling on the chest, between the forelimbs. This appears consistent with a haematoma.

The usual attending veterinary practice for this property is Equivets NZ.

This certificate, and all of the information contained within pertains to examination conducted on the 13th January 2021 and can only be considered as current by the attending veterinarian on that date.
